Australian LNG exports to surge by over 60% this year – EnergyQuest

Australia's LNG exports rose nearly 40% last year and are on course to grow by an even larger margin in 2017, according to a market forecast by independent energy consultancy EnergyQuest.

A “plethora of new projects” in Western Australia, the Northern Territory and Queensland drove exports to 37 mtpa in 2016 and volumes could rise by 63% this year to around 60 mtpa as the Australia Pacific and Gorgon projects ramp up and the Wheatstone and Ichthys plants come on stream, the company said.
