Top stories: Shell, TotalEnergies' Mozambique plans, Kimmeridge bids for SilverBow

Word of Shell's head of LNG leaving made news this week, surprising the market just days ahead of the firm saying it is revising its emissions strategy. Steve Hill, who moved to Shell in 2016 after its USD 53 billion acquisition of BG Group, is expected to leave by 28 March.

Elsewhere, US asset manager Kimmeridge made another play for takeover of Houston-based E&P company SilverBow with the aim of creating the largest public pure-play Eagle Ford shale operator.

Gas Matters Today also went beyond earnings figures from E.ON and RWE. Here's the top news that made headlines this week:
