Sanctions imparting new momentum to proposed GTL projects in Iran

In yet another sign that international sanctions are having more effect on Iran than the government is prepared to admit, GTL project developers are being encouraged to accelerate their proposals to help meet the country's vehicle fuels needs. However, the earliest that the first such project could come on stream would be in around 2015, according to Narsi Ghorban, managing director of Narkangan Gas to Liquid International Company.
