Russia’s gas production in July drops to 1.42 Bcm/day on low demand for exports

Russia’s gas production in July declined slightly to 1.4visual_editor Bcm/day from 1.47 Bcm/day in June, while oil output remained stable at around 10.14 million barrels/day. The drop in gas output came as a reaction to continuing low demand for Russian gas imports in southern Europe and due to the seasonal effect of a warm summer, the Russian energy ministry’s CDU-TEK unit said.
