Total: Developing a global LNG portfolio

As part of its strategy to enhance its global LNG portfolio, French oil and gas major Total continues to seek monetisation options for its existing natural gas assets, in an international market the company describes as “rife with competition”. Given the increased reliance on LNG post-Fukushima, Total expects Asia to maintain its position as the top global consumer of LNG, and believes India will continue its emergence as a major market as the country’s demand deficit increases and pipeline supply remains lacking.
