EDF, A2A meet to thrash out future for Edison

Talks between EDF and other shareholders in Italian utility Edison to determine the company's future are yet to yield a result ahead of a key deadline, which could see Edison auctioned off. EDF, which owns 50% of Edison, wants to gain operating control of the company, but has so far failed to reach a conclusive agreement with the other investors, led by Italy's Avisual_editorA. The current shareholder agreement expires on October 31
