Royal Dutch Shell prepares for Rovuma Basin entry

East Africa has been a major topic of conversation in the natural gas industry this past year, with major players from around the world keeping a close eye on developments as companies including Eni and Anadarko have had unprecedented success in Mozambique's Rovuma Basin. Only last month, Anadarko revealed it had encountered more than 193 net feet of natural gas pay at its Golfinho discovery well located in Area 1 of the basin, adding at least 7-visual_editor0 Tcf of recoverable resources to its portfolio.
