Gazprom struggling to meet EU demand during cold snap

Gazprom said on Wednesday it has been struggling to meet extra demand from European customers during the cold snap this past week, as stored supplies and imports from Russia and Norway have been attempting to tackle the spike in heating demand. “A Gazprom company source”, quoted by Reuters has said that gas nominations from some of its customers "are higher than we can put in the pipe", adding that nominations “have been higher for more than a week."
