Uncertainty around UK EMR “greatest barrier” to investment in gas – RWE npower

Uncertainty surrounding UK Electricity Market Reform (EMR) and other regulatory interventions in the wholesale market are creating “the most significant barrier to investment” in new gas-fired power plants, according to RWE npower chief operating officer Kevin McCullough. Speaking to Gas Matters Today in an exclusive interview, McCullough also said a stronger case needed to be made for the proposed capacity mechanism, adding that “existing market arrangements already strongly encourage companies to balance supply and demand”.
