Enagas joins TAP consortium as E.ON and Total depart

The Trans Adriatic Pipeline (TAP) on Wednesday unveiled details of a shareholder reshuffle that sees Enagas join the consortium, acquiring a 16% stake, while Fluxys tops up its holding from 16% to 19%. The pair replace the departing E.ON and Total, which held 9% and 10%, respectively. No financial details were released and no comments were forthcoming from TAP when contacted by Gas Strategies.
