Tullow Oil declares force majeure on West Leo drilling contract

Ghana-focused Tullow Oil has declared force majeure on its offshore drilling contract with Seadrill Partners for deepwater semi-submersible drilling vessel West Leo, Seadrill said on Tuesday.

Tullow reportedly claims that the TEN development, where West Leo was most recently deployed, is subject to a drilling moratorium by the Ghanaian government, imposed because of an ongoing border dispute at the International Tribunal for the Law of the Sea (ITLOS).
