Gas-to-liquids sector shifts focus to small-scale ventures

The gas-to-liquids (GTL) sector is beginning to shift its focus to small-scale installations over larger projects, which have been hit hard since the oil price collapse of late 2014.

In the current market, it appears unlikely that any large-scale GTL project will reach final investment decision in a 'lower-for-longer' price environment. But smaller operations may not have much longer to wait.
