OIES: Russia ‘unrealistic’ to expect 100 Bcm/year rise in EU imports

Recent predictions by Russian energy minister Alexander Novak that Gazprom would export an extra 100 Bcm/year to the EU by 2030 thanks to falling production across the bloc are “unrealistic”, experts at the Oxford Institute for Energy Studies (OIES) told Gas Matters Today.

The statements emerged earlier this month in reports by Russian state-affiliated media agency Sputnik.
