SoCalGas 'resuming Aliso Canyon gas injections' as latest legal challenge fails

Gas injection at California's storage facility Aliso Canyon is set to get underway imminently following the "successful completion of rigorous testing procedures" and victory for the plant's operator in a series of legal battles.

Southern California Gas Company (SoCalGas) has notified local residents that the process to resume "limited injection operations" is underway at the facility for the first time since a major 2015 methane leak.

"SoCalGas has completed the steps necessary to ...
