Okra Energy nears completion of Peru's maiden small-scale LNG plant

Peru's first small-scale LNG plant is nearing completion in Piura, on the country's northern coast, where it will serve as a virtual pipeline to cater for the increasing gas demand from the remote areas of the country.

US based Okra Energy – through its subsidiary Lantera Energy – is installing the facility, which will be able to serve residential, industrial, and power generation needs, in addition to...
