‘Digitalisation’ may greatly benefit natural gas industry, but it comes with risks – IEA

Digital technology could bring big benefits across the natural gas industry, but looming questions remain over how quickly those gains will materialise and how disruptive it will be to existing businesses, the International Energy Agency (IEA) said in a new paper published this week.

“Digitalization holds great promise to help improve the safety, productivity, efficiency and sustainability of energy systems worldwide. But it also raises questions of ...
