

23 July 2019

Contents

The Cuadrilla interview: Francis Egan, CEO
Publication date: 14 May 2019

Gas Strategies Group

10 Saint Bride Street
London UK
EC4A 4AD

ISSN: 0964-8496

T: +44(0) 20 7332 9900
W: www.gasstrategies.com
Twitter @GSInfoServices

Editorials

+44(0) 20 7332 9957
editor@gasstrategies.com

Subscriptions

+44(0) 20 7332 9976
subscriptions@gasstrategies.com

The Cuadrilla interview: Francis Egan, CEO

The shale gas industry straddles a fissure in UK politics – on the one hand promising the kind of energy independence that would perfectly complement a post-Brexit world; on the other stoking intense controversy, including the recent resignation of the country's shale gas commissioner over what she described as "ridiculous" seismicity limits, and opposition from environmental lobby groups. Stuck in the middle of it all is Cuadrilla, the UK's principle shale gas explorer. A recent court ruling dealt a fresh blow to UK shale gas prospects – but domestically produced energy could “slash gas import dependence” according to industry representative body UK Onshore Oil and Gas (UKOOG). In this exclusive interview, Cuadrilla CEO Francis Egan speaks to Gas Matters about the current status quo in UK shale and what it might take to realise the UK's own “shale gale”.

Consulting

+44 (0) 20 7332 9900
consult@gasstrategies.com

Alphatania Training

+44 (0) 20 7332 9910
training@gasstrategies.com

Information Services

+44 (0) 20 7332 9976
subscriptions@gasstrategies.com