The project finance interview: Stephen Jurgenson, partner, Winston & Strawn

Stephen Jurgenson, partner at global law firm Winston & Strawn, has more than 20 years of experience representing clients on oil and gas project finance and infrastructure developments in the Middle East, Africa and Europe. In this interview, he explains to LNG Business Review how the Delimara LNG-to-power project in Malta, with which he was associated, 'broke new ground' for LNG project financing, why 'failure' should not be used to describe projects that do not go ahead, and what else, beyond pricing, will influence the growth of LNG demand.
