Crude oil prices softened again on Tuesday, with Brent falling 1.1% to USD 44.50/barrel and WTI losing 0.8% to settle at USD 41.61/barrel. The losses erased most of Monday's gains.

European gas hubs fell less sharply on Tuesday, this time diverging from the US gas benchmark. UK NBP fell 1.6% to USD 2.69/MMBtu and Dutch TTF fell 2.3% to USD 2.56/MMBtu, while Henry Hub gained 0.8% to close at USD 2.17/MMBtu.

CME's JKM futures gained 1.2% to hit USD 2.88/MMBtu, the front-month contract's highest closing price since 31 March 2020.

The European carbon price failed to cling onto Monday's gains, as the month-ahead futures contract for ETS carbon allowances (EUAs) fell 2% to close at EUR 26.14/tonne.
