‘Decarbonisation has created new areas of business for LNG’: Reed Smith

The past decade may have seen the LNG industry change faster than ever before, but according to Kevin Keenan and Mike Adamson, partner and senior associate, respectively, at global law firm Reed Smith, what LNG clients want from lawyers will never change: solid advice guided by intelligent analysis of the law and the facts, and a detailed knowledge of the sector.

In this exclusive interview, Keenan and Adamson explain why, despite the Covid-19 pandemic being often referred to as an ‘unprecedented’ event, the pressure it put on LNG contractual agreements was not as severe as some industry players feared, and how, for a profession steeped in tradition, technological innovation can help make law firms more efficient and cut costs.
