Insight for the gas and LNG industry

Gas Strategies Information Services

In a world of information overload, leading organisations need access to accurate and relevant insight they can trust. Gas Strategies Information Services is recognised for going beyond the news to provide a deeper understanding of the issues and developments that matter to the industry, informing our clients about the events impacting them and allowing them to evaluate the risks and identify the opportunities to stay ahead of the competition.

Produced through our editorial network and backed by over 30 years of consulting, Gas Strategies Information Services is an authoritative tool used and trusted by organisations across the globe. Our comprehensive range of regular news, features, analysis and interviews with senior gas and LNG leaders, coupled with our extensive archive, provides a complete picture of the industry. Our content is strengthened by a multi-stage review process, enabling our clients to develop their own thinking with confidence, make better decisions and keep up to date with trends and opinions.

Our coverage is global and available immediately through our website and app. Our three titles – Gas Matters Today, Gas Matters and LNG Business Review – are distributed through our web platform, regular newsletters and app alerts, ensuring that our clients receive timely information, helping them stay ahead of the curve. Across our publications, we focus on bringing the most relevant information to the forefront – and in an age of ‘fake news’ and unreliable commentary our service is independent, impartial and verified.

Publication titles

Gas Strategies Information Services are provided through three complementary titles which each have their particular focus and coverage.

Gas Matters Today

Gas Matters Today's news analysis keeps readers fully briefed on the relevant people, companies and events shaping the gas, LNG and wider hydrocarbon industries. Subscription provides access to full archive dating back to 2001, daily news updates published via email and delivered through our app.

Gas Matters

Gas Matters offers expert insight and perspective into the key issues affecting the gas, LNG and wider energy businesses and is an authoritative tool for industry professionals. A subscription includes feature-length articles published 4-5 times per month online available via email and through our app, as well as access to our searchable online archive back to 1988.

LNG Business Review

LNG Business Review is the indispensable tool for professionals involved in all aspects of the LNG value chain, delivering commercial insight into today's global LNG business. A subscription includes feature-length articles published 4-5 times per month online available via email and through our app, unrivalled coverage of global LNG project developments, commercial operations, contract and portfolio management and full access to the online archive as far back as 2004
